Help Mitigate Risk by having the correct Business Insurance

You can't always avoid risk, but you can insure against those potential situations. Business Insurance is an essential and necessary component of running your business.

Some important kinds of business insurance coverage to consider include:

General Liability Insurance protects your business from lawsuits due to injuries or damages to others or their property caused by your products or while on your premises.

Commercial Property Insurance protects property owned by the business against situations like fire and theft.

Error and Omissions Coverage protects you from lawsuits made due to a mistake or oversight in the performance of professional services. This type of insurance is usually used in professional services firms such as law, accounting and consulting.

Commercial Auto Insurance covers vehicles owned by the business in the event of an auto accident.

Business Interruption Insurance helps cover lost earnings and other expenses if there is a temporary shutdown of your business due to an insured situation such as fire.

Group Benefits Insurance provides financial protection for common health-related expenses for you and your employees.

Business Creditor Insurance is used to help cover outstanding balances on common business lending products.

Trade Credit Insurance is used to protect your accounts receivable from losses due to a customer's inability to pay or insolvency.

An experienced Insurance Agent can help you identify the potential risks in your business, advise you on how to reduce some of the more manageable exposures and suggest insurance solutions that take your risk tolerance and financial situation into account. Contact your Insurance Agent for additional information and recommendations.
